Ind. History – Civil War

DECEMBER MEETING

As December 11 is the anniversary of the admission of Indiana to statehood on December 11, 1816, we thought it would be most suitable to have a program that concerned the background of this important event. We could think of no one who would be better informed on the subject than Dr. Charles Roll. Though he is not doing much talking before groups now, he has graciously said he would give us an informal talk on the subject. Our preoccupation with all of the lively events that have occurred since we achieved statehood, have perhaps directed our attention away from the fact that our statehood came first and is the foundation of all that followed. We are sure you will enjoy this and will be better informed on the subject from having heard the talk.

DEDICATION OF THE MARKER FOR CAMP VIGO

This article for Ind. pocket file on Ind. History Civil War

The marker for Camp Vigo was dedicated November 20 at 1:15 p.m. on the new highway 41 by-pass at a point about where Delaware would intersect if it continued through. It was attended by the color guard of the American Legion, the fourth grade of Collett School, the McLean Junior High School band who played several numbers, several members of the Vigo County Historical Society and several adults from the schools, and news photographers. The State Highway police controlled the traffic. Mr. Ira Campbell gave the talk, and as he had prepared a manuscript, we have asked him to let us share it with you. It contains facts which were unfamiliar to us and we thought others who were not able to be present would like to have the information. It was an effective dedication, and helps us become more familiar with our own community as well as letting travelers passing through know about some of the interesting historical points in this vicinity.

CAMP VIGO

A Brief History on the occasion of placing a Marker to commemorate the Site of the Camp November 20, 1962

By Ira W. Campbell

The Civil War began in April, 1861, and just a month later authorization was given to raise a regiment in Terre Haute. The Vigo County fairgrounds was chosen as the camp site, and for the purpose was renamed Camp Vigo. The first three of the Civil War regiments raised in Terre Haute were organized here.

Camp Vigo was an area of fifty-one acres, lying between Third and Seventh Streets, and between Florida Avenue on the north and Collett on the south. We are standing now almost in the center of this area. At the time of the Civil War it was enclosed by a high board fence, and along the sides were stalls used during the county fair to house and display stock of various kinds and farm equipment. Some of the stalls had overhead lofts, and in these the new recruits made their quarters. The soldiers lived and cooked their meals on the first floor, and slept upstairs in the hay.

In order to have a regiment in the Civil War, it was necessary to organize ten companies of roughly 100 men each. Usually men from the same county or town went together to form the companies. Thus one company would consist entirely of Vigo County men, another of men from Parke County, and another from Putnam County. They lived together, cooked their meals and ate together, and later fought together as a group.

The men elected their own officers, and elections were the occasion for considerable political activity as the companies selected their own Captains, Lieutenants, Sergeants and Corporals. When enough companies had been formed and officers chosen, the Regiment was ready to be mustered into the Army of the United States, and at this time a Colonel to command the regiment was either appointed or elected. The first regiment raised here at Camp Vigo became the Indiana 14th, with Colonel Nathan Kimball of Loogootee at its head.

The 14th Indiana was mustered in on June 7th, 1862, and went into service in the east. It became one of the most famous regiments of the war; it helped defeat Stonewall Jackson at the Battle of Kernstown in the Valley; it got closest to the Confederate Line in the bloody fight at Fredericksburg; and the 14th fought in most of the famous battles of the Eastern theatre of war, including Gettysburg.

Immediately after the 14th vacated Camp Vigo, a second regiment began to organize. This one became the 31st Indiana, under the command of Colonel Charles Cruft of Terre Haute. The 31st fought under Grant at Fort Donelson and Shiloh, under Rosecrans at Chicamauga, and under Sherman in the Georgia campaigns. After the 31st, only one more regiment, the 43rd Indiana under Colonel George Steele, was organized at this site. Later Terre Haute regiments were formed at a new camp on East Poplar Street.

Thus Camp Vigo had a short history of barely four months, but during that period thousands of men and boys from Terre Haute and surrounding towns and farms lived here, learned to drill and march, and finally, with their regimental bands playing, marched off to the South to fight and die for the preservation of the Union.

It is in remembrance of these men that we are privileged to dedicate this marker here today.

Civil War Camp Marker Unveiled In Ceremony Here

Trib. 11.23.93

A marker to commemorate the site of Camp Vigo, where the first local regiment of volunteers trained during the Civil War, was dedicated in ceremonies starting at 1:15 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

The marker, erected on United States Highway 41 where it angles from Third to Seventh street, is in the exact center of the 51-acre Civil War camp, which lay between Third and Seventh streets and Florida and Collett avenues, occupying what formerly was the Vigo County Fairgrounds. The camp had about a four-month history.

In giving a brief history of the camp during the ceremonies, Ira Campbell noted that the first of three regiments raised in Terre Haute was organized at the site. He told of how the regiment was organized, companies being composed of men from the counties in the surrounding area.

THE REGIMENT organized there, the Indiana Fourteenth, became one of the most famous regiments of the Civil War, Campbell noted, helping defeat Stonewall Jackson at the Battle of Kernstown, getting closest to the Confederate line at Fredericksburg, and fighting in most of the famous battles of the Eastern Theater, including Gettysburg.

Music for the dedication was provided by the McLean Junior High School Band, Collett School fourth graders participated as part of their study of Indiana history, and an American Legion color guard served for the ceremony.

John G. Biel, representing the Vigo County Historical Society, was chairman of the committee on arrangements, assisted by Ira Campbell, chairman of the Civil War Round Table, and Earl Pike, representing the Vigo County School Corporation. They were aided in staging the dedication by the Indiana State Police and the Indiana State Highway Commission, which erected the marker provided by the State Civil War Centennial Commission.

FATHER AND SON FACE DEATH IN RAGING FORD

Timely Arrival of Aid Prevents Drowning of Arthur and Frank Crooks Near Rockville.

ROCKVILLE, Ind., April 22.—Arthur Crooks and son Frank of Mansfield narrowly escaped drowning while attempting to cross the Harmless ford on their way home from the Ferndale mill.

The water was so swift and deep the horse was not able to pull through it and the buggy was upset in midstream. The men were thrown into the current, the buggy turning over on the son.

Had it not been for the timely assistance of some men nearby, who cut the harness and swam after the men, Mr. Crooks and his son would have been drowned.

FARMER IS BADLY HURT IN INTERURBAN ACCIDENT

Charles Runyan Badly Hurt in Crash At Grade Crossing Near Greencastle.

GREENCASTLE, Ind., April 22.—Charles Runyan, a well known farmer, living near this city, in Marion township, was the victim of a terrible accident, in which he narrowly escaped death. He was struck by an interurban car near the crossing of the Limedale road, just south of the city limits, and where the interurban tracks begin to rise to pass over the Monon. Runyan was caught like a rat in a trap, for he had driven off the road where it crosses the interurban and had turned his team up the tracks instead of keeping them in the road, and they went on past the cattleguard and there were caught by the car with no chance to escape.

The car was in charge of Motorman Frank Hankins and Conductor Charles Fancher.

Two of the directors of the road were in the vestibule of the car with Motorman Hankins, and at the point of the road it is impossible to see far. Hankins had his eye on the crossing, however, and as the light swung on the track he saw the buggy; with an exclamation of "What do you think of that?" he threw on the brakes. The car struck the buggy with terrific force and ran about 200 feet after striking it. The buggy was struck in the rear end and telescoped clear through and then the car struck the mules. Runyan was badly hurt. His right leg was crushed below the knee and his scalp was torn loose, a long gash being cut in it and also a shorter one.

Runyan was picked up and placed on the car, which was run back to the station, and as there is no hospital here Dr. Hutcheson took him to Terre Haute at once. An ambulance met them at Third street and Runyan was taken to Union hospital. He was at once gotten ready for an operation and Dr. Coombs of Terre Haute removed the leg just below the knee, Dr. Hutcheson administering the anes-

NEW YORK, March 29.—Instances of ground glass in bandages prepared for the American Red Cross have been discovered, it was declared today in a statement from the organization authoristd by Albert W. Straub, director of its Atlantic division.

"I am quoted in the newspapers," the statement read, "as having declared that medical supplies made by Red Cross workers had been found tampered with by spies, and that bandages had been discovered soaked with poisonous chemicals. No such statement ever was made by me.

"It is true, however, that in one or two instances we have found ground glass in bandages prepared for the Red Cross. These have been promptly detected, and the cases reported to the proper authorities."

County's Last Civil War Veteran Will Mark 97th Birthday Friday

James Hutchinson, Vigo County's sole surviving Civil War veteran, will celebrate his ninety-seventh birthday next Friday. It will be a quiet celebration at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Minnie Fox, and granddaughter, Mrs. Elizabeth Evans, of 433 North Thirteenth Street.

He will read the daily newspapers, perhaps a magazine or two, and listen to the radio. Perhaps if the weather is good, Comrade Hutchinson will take a walk. Recently, however, the cold has kept him from taking some of the walks he enjoys so much.

Right now Comrade Hutchinson's keenest interest is the progress of the World War. His great-grandson, Ernest Fox, is overseas some place. His grandson, Robert Payton, is also in the service. Comrade Hutchinson said the other day as he talked with a veteran of World War I, "If they could use me in this war, I'd go."

He likes to contrast this war with the Civil War and its horse-drawn ammunition wagons and cannons. It was then, Comrade Hutchinson reminds his friends, that cavalrymen were cavalrymen and not mechanized.

Comrade Hutchinson was born in Scotland, where he began his work in the coal mines. He came to this country and on to Indiana when a young man. He enlisted in the Union Army in Warrick County on March 18, 1864; fought in the siege of Atlanta, marched with Sherman to the sea and then took part in several other battles.

At the close of the Civil War Comrade Hutchinson came to Terre Haute. He worked in different coal mines close to Terre Haute for several years.

For many years Comrade Hutchinson had as his best friends other members of the G. A. R. After they had died he still had as friends members of the Half Century and Three-quarter Century clubs.

Comrade Hutchinson now carries the Half Century Club's honor cane which is awarded at each annual meeting to the oldest member of the club present at that session.

Comrade Hutchinson has six living children, several grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

Comrade James Hutchison, aged 97 Friday, and his great-grandson, Private Ernest Fox, posed for their picture when he was home. Mr. Fox is in the air corps and now overseas. Friday Mr. Hutchison celebrated his ninety-seventh birthday. He marched with General Sherman to the sea, wearing the uniform of blue. He is the last living veteran of Vigo county.

HERE IS ANOTHER SURVIVOR OF THE CIVIL WAR, IT SEEMS

Meet Comrade James Hutchison, the only survivor of the Civil War in Vigo county. He celebrated his ninety-seventh birth anniversary Friday, Jan. 29th, at his home, 433 North Thirteenth street, where he makes his home with his daughter, Mrs. Minnie Fox. Comrade Hutchison was born in Coat Bridge, Scotland, in 1846.

When the War of the Rebellion broke he was living at Newburg, Ind., and he enlisted at the age of 18 years. He was a members of His record as a soldier was a gratifying one. He fought in the battles at the siege of Atlanta, at Jonesboro and the second battle of Snake Creek Gap, among a number of others. He marched with General Sherman to the sea, and July 17, 1865, he received an honorable discharge in Louisville, Ky.

He was wed to Mary Katherine Hinkle at Edwardsport, Ind., on July 11, 1872, and to their union were born seven children, of whom six are still living. Mrs. Hutchison passed this life Oct. 29th, 1926, and since that time Mr. Hutchison has made his home with his daughter,
